

SPANISH & PORTUGUESE STUDIES
UNIVERSITY of WASHINGTON

BEING HUMAN: PERSPECTIVES FROM THE HISPANIC WORLD

SPAN 352 FICTION

REFLECTIONS ON THE HUMAN CONDITION

The course offers an overview of the many qualities that make us human by looking at texts, cultures and sociocultural developments in the Hispanic World. Taking a selection of literary texts as points of departure, the course engages a variety of current issues, such as social justice, human interaction, power and hegemony, language, food and society, environment, art and music, activism, and ideological constructions of race and gender.

REQUIREMENTS

COURSE TAUGHT IN SPANISH: Prerequisites are ANY of the following: SPAN 301, 302, 303, 314, 315 or 316. Contact instructor or the department academic advisor at spsadv@uw.edu with any questions.

SPAN 352

WINTER 2020

3:30-4:50 / MW / SAVERY 137

CREDITS: 3

PROFESSOR
ANA GÓMEZ-BRAVO

AGBRAVO@UW.EDU

SPANPORT.WASHINGTON.EDU