

Requirements for Graduate Faculty Status in SPS

A. To be nominated for Graduate Faculty Status, which will be determined by a vote of the existing Graduate Faculty in SPS, the candidate must satisfy a significant number of the following considerations:

1. Active and ongoing research-based scholarship as evidenced by:

- Books: single author or co-authored research monographs (published by a prestigious publishing press, such as a university or premier trade press);
- Articles: single author or co-authored articles in prestigious peer-reviewed journals; and / or
- Chapters: single author or co-authored chapters in peer-reviewed edited books (published by a prestigious publishing press, such as a university or premier trade press)

(NB: In the case of co-authored publications, preference will be given to first-authorship.)

2. Active and ongoing teaching-based scholarship, or active and ongoing creative work relevant to SPS's scholarly mission, both subject to the same criteria as research-based scholarship (see above).

B. For nomination to the status of Graduate Faculty with Doctoral Endorsement, the candidate is required to have a PhD.

C. Process:

1. Tenure-track faculty: will be automatically considered in the first year of their contract.

2. Teaching faculty: may self-nominate at any time.
